

Disclaimer Statement

The Anxiety and Depression Association (ADAA) is an association of mental health professionals and is not a certifying organization. ADAA, therefore, does not make specific referrals, but does make its list of members and specialties available through its Find-a-Therapist platform.

ADAA's Find-a-Therapist platform does not include and does not intend to confer opinions, ratings, or reviews of participating professionals. ADAA assumes no responsibility with respect to the selection of a therapist and the outcome of the therapy. The Find-a-Therapist database is provided as a public service and includes the names and clinical practice information of current ADAA professional members who choose to participate in this service. The absence of the name of a therapist from this list in no way implies that they are not a competent therapist; it only implies that they do not participate in this particular ADAA service.

We would appreciate your feedback about ADAA's Find-a-Therapist platform and if this service was helpful to you. Please keep in mind that the listing in the Find A Therapist section makes no representation with respect to the success of your treatment. ADAA assumes no responsibility for the results of your therapy or the associated costs.